

Kent State University Speech & Hearing Clinic
in partnership with the Autism Society of Greater Akron presents

BOUNDARIES SOCIAL SKILLS GROUP

a 7-week program for 10-15 year-olds

Does your son or daughter understand the difference between a friend and an acquaintance? If not, the Boundaries Social Skills Group could be just what you need! This group will focus on teaching appropriate social interactions for the various levels of relationships (family, friend, acquaintance, etc.). Participants will learn to identify the characteristics of each relationship level and the types of behavior appropriate for that relationship level (hugs, handshakes, waves, etc.)

This seven-week course grew out of a collaboration between the Autism Society of Greater Akron and Kent State University. The program is designed for participants who can take turns, participate in small group settings, use a reliable form of language and show age-appropriate cognitive skills.

Weekly sessions are at the KSU Speech and Hearing Clinic

Thursdays from 5:30-6:30 pm, starts Feb. 28th

(no session 3/28- Spring Break)

The cost for the group is $250, but thanks to a generous grant from the Portage Foundation each participant will receive a $50 scholarship.
